"The most rewarding experience I’ve had at SIG was when my manager referred me for the C++Now conference. I remember sitting in some of the talks and thinking it was a little over my head, and gasping for breath, but in a really good way. It was a really cool experience."

- Anne
“Having time for friends and family is important to me. At SIG, I’ve found that my time outside of work really is my time. Work-life balance is real at SIG, and for me, that’s priceless.”

- Cathy
“The growth in my career didn’t happen overnight. I was a follower before I could be a leader, and learned many valuable lessons working with some amazing people at SIG over the past 25 years. The best piece of advice I received? In the end, your hard work and dedication will pay off.”

- Kathy
“A couple weeks ago, a developer on one of my teams, who is a woman, made the observation to me: her team lead is a woman, her team lead reports into me, and I report to our CIO, Gina Pinotti. We have a straight line of all women...which feels pretty good.”

- Judy
"Our technology team is built on collaboration, so we try to introduce trust and transparency from Day 1. Our technologists are asked to have opinions and make decisions that contribute to both their success and the firm’s success every day."

- Gina
“One of my favorite things about working at SIG is the dynamic environment. No day is ever the same and the fast-paced environment challenges me to always be on my toes. I am excited to come to work and discover what the day has in store for me.”

- Alexis
"I thought I would stop working once I had kids. I was surprised to find how fun and easy SIG made it to balance work with raising a family."

- Lauren
“Last spring, SIG asked me to speak about best practices for job hunting at Philly’s Women in Tech conference. I was nervous to participate, but in the end, I’m so glad I got to speak and help local women in technology, alongside other women at SIG.”

- Mayuri
“Over the past 25 years, my career has grown from an operations associate to managing our proprietary research effort worldwide. It’s not the titles that matter. I’ve grown my career because SIG has always encouraged me to explore new ideas to capture that next undiscovered opportunity.”

- Jen
"My husband and I got married in this amazing 16th century villa in Italy. I wouldn’t have been able to do that, and travel for 2.5 weeks for my honeymoon, without the extra week of vacation granted by SIG in the year you get married."

- Sarah
"As a new mom, it was amazing that SIG gave me 14 weeks of paid leave to bond with my daughter. I am so appreciative of SIG’s accommodating work environment and my support system of working moms. Guidance from the people around me made my transition back to work much easier than I was expecting."
